UMP : THESIS GUIDELINE – CITATION STYLE

Referencing/Citation Styles

How you format your reference depends on citation style you use e.g., Vancouver, APA, Chicago, IEEE, MLA style.

You should follow the referencing style required for your particular assignment, or as set out by your lecturer or faculty.

APA Style update (7th ed.)

4.1 Introduction

The Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed., 2010) is used as the guideline in citing and creating sources. Students are advised to refer to the publication manual for any further explanation of the APA Style.

All the references cited in the text must be provided in the references list at the end of the thesis. The list of sources cited should be compiled based on the AUTHOR-YEAR system and listed according to alphabetical and chronological order. If more than one reference by the same author were cited, these references should be listed chronologically.

References should be typed single spaced with one inch margins and 1.5 line spacing between entries. If a reference were not in the language of the text (except for English), then it should be translated into the language of the text. A reference list includes only references that document the article and provide recoverable data. Personal
